Background: The progress of civil defense preparations in the USSR are of great interest at the present time. In general, Sovbloc civil defense instructions anticipate that the bulk of the population will remain in urban areas using locally available shelter during possible air attacks.

The source in paragraph 3, page 3 of the referenced report mentions the preparation of an "evacuation" plan of houses and schools.

Requirement: That the source be reinterrogated to clarify what he meant by the term "evacuation".

1. Does evacuation, as source used it, refer to movement from buildings to shelter or to evacuation of the urban area?
2. If urban evacuation is meant, how will movement be controlled and coordinated?
3. Where will evacuees go?
4. What provision will be made for their shelter, feeding and other care in reception areas?
5. Is such an evacuation plan selective or does it include all the population?
